EXPERIENCE IN EDUCATION

1. Experiences on scientific writing education for students: Supervised/mentored scientific publications, 32 of master's theses, 49 from doctoral dissertations, and 19 from post-doctoral researchers (from the bench, designing, performing, and data analysis to publication) from a cross-section of disciplines and backgrounds, ranging from biology, life science, human and agricultural sciences including medicine and dentistry, as well as from multiple countries, cultures, ethics, environments, as well as background; familiar with online platforms, including education, conferences, and video presentations; experiences from basic science to clinical, translational, population-based and epidemiological researches, daily shape up of work assignments and worksheets
2. My current job responsibilities: Solely engaged in scientific writing editing, critical thinking job for students
3. Setting up/identifying/formulating a research question/problem/issue independently and then how to summarize the topic, most emphasis has been given to the way of analysis and the required analytical skill, to be more systematic, less descriptive (from students supervision and critical thinking), more than 65 original research article published in English based international journals over last 18 years in Japan and abroad mainly at public universities/institutes (vast experiences on paper revision, satisfying reviewer's demand); emphasis in case studies/report writing/research proposal writing
4. Topic or subject dependent (multidisciplinary and multi-faceted, expertise with small knowledge for a particular field with careful referencing and resourcing); Horizontal integration bringing disciplines, subjects and topics
5. Data interpretation (arguments to believe, evidence-based, findings-based, convincing, relevant, reflective, having value)
6. Implementation of decision making based on the conclusion, reasoning
